Water Show Plays This Weekend

"Rainbow Rhythms," this year's McGill water show, will take place on Friday and Saturday, March 13 and 14, in the Memorial Pool of Sir Arthur Currie Gymnasium. The committee in charge of the production has decided to run the show for two nights this year since they feel its one night stand last year was very well received. The show this year is synchronized to music signifying specific colours of the rainbow. Feature diving, stunts and comedy will all be part of the routines. The event is under the sponsorship of the McGill Women's Student Athletic Association and co-chairmen for this year's show are Jeanette Hatfield, B.Sc.3, and Heather Adair, Ph.D. 3. Tickets may be obtained at the Currie Gym. Reserved seats are selling for 75 cents, adult tickets are 50 cents, and students will be admitted for 25 cents.

Integration Is Lecture Subject For Architects

The issue of integration between the arts and architecture will be the subject of a talk by Mrs. Sibyl Moholy-Nagy in the Physical Sciences Centre Auditorium on Friday, March 13, at 8 p.m. Mrs. Moholy-Nagy, has been closely associated with the beginnings of the modern movement of architecture. She and her husband promoted the educational work made famous by Gropius at the Bauhaus in Germany before Hitler suppressed all liberal fields of thought. She is now an Associate Professor of the School of Architecture at the Pratt Institute. Her lecture is being sponsored by SCOPE and the Architectural Undergraduate Society. Illustrated documentary material will be used.

Debating Union Announces 1953 Awards

The Debating Executive is presenting Gold Keys to Peter Satterthwaite and Daniel Kingstone at the Awards Dinner-Dance this evening.

GOLD KEY
The Gold Key is the highest award the Debating Union has to offer any student at McGill. It is decided upon by a committee of past winners, and then passed to the Executive Council for approval.

SATTERTHWAITE
Peter Satterthwaite was the winner of the Papineau Cup — the highest and best orator in the University for this year. He was one of the three members of the team which met Scotland here at McGill last year, and was a finalist in the Papineau Cup at that time also. In 1949, he was the recipient of a Gold A debating award.

KINGSTONE
Danny Kingstone, a fourth year Arts student, has been very active in debating. He was the winner of the Bovey Shield in his first year at McGill, and beat Toronto last year in the annual intercollegiate debate with that University. He is presently intercollegiate chairman of the Debating Executive.

GOLD A'S
The Debating Executive also announced the winners of the Gold A Debating awards (NOT to be presented at the Awards Banquet), which are on excellence and debating skill here in the University. The following will receive these awards: John Fraser, Irvine Goffman, Harold Ashenmiller, Blema Solomon, Allison Knox, Yvonne Goldstein and Bernard Rothman.

Dr. James First Non-Student To Get Students Society Award

Dr. F. Cyril James, Principal of McGill University, will be presented with a gold award at the annual Awards Banquet to be held tonight in the Currie Gym. The token, a pewter mug, will be given to him by Mel Rothman, President of the Students' Society, after the presentation of SEC awards. Rothman had this to say about the matter: "For the past number of years, the Students' Society has presented awards to those whose outstanding contribution to the Society has made our program possible. To the best of my knowledge this presentation has never been made to anyone who was not a student. As a general rule, this is as it should be. However through the years, and

Dinner to Precede Awards Dance

A dinner starting the Awards Dinner Dance will be held tonight at 7 p.m. at Sir Arthur Currie Gym. Prior to the dinner the "B" and "C" awards winners and their escorts are invited to meet in the John Turner Bone Room.

Awards and Degrees

Each year there are two events which mark the ending of a year's activity. They are the Awards banquet and the arrival of examinations. Tonight the extracurricular side of the University's life finds its culmination—so that the more serious side may receive the attention it should have been getting throughout the year. Students who have shirked their academic work during the year now begin to get down to it, well aware of the fact that the end is not far off.

In a way, tonight's affair is similar to Convocation. It marks an ending and a beginning. (For some the end of play and the beginning of work.) The outward tokens of excellence are presented.

Perhaps the key word in this matter is 'outward'. For the awards, executive and athletic, which will be presented tonight are only tokens of appreciation for contributions to student life. The real award is in the activity itself. The people who participate in athletics, who work on The Daily, who help to put on the Red and White Revue, do it for the fun of it, and for whatever they may learn in doing it. The awards given by the Students' Executive Council are for excellence, for those who are outstanding; excellence is always its own reward.

We have often said that we think student activities are an essential part of the life of the university, and that participation in them essential to true education. Thus leadership in student affairs is a two-fold matter; it involves gain for the individual, and it involves a contribution to the total life of the university community. The awards are in recognition of the latter.

But we should remember that, as we do not come to University to obtain a parchment degree; we do not participate in student activities to earn an award. We should do both for the value of the thing itself.

For a New Forge

Next year, it seems, Forge will inaugurate a new policy. Instead of it being a yearly issue, with a fancy cover and first class paper, three issues of inferior paper quality will be printed. This will give the creative element of campus a wider scope and will offer to readers more variety in material.

There is the idea that the concept behind the publication of Forge should be of a wider nature; that up to the present it has been more of a yearly event, more like a gallery showing of paintings, than a continuing organism. It has been more of a showcase than a magazine. Now a magazine has a showplace function, of course, and a literary magazine even more so, but the material contained in a good literary magazine is active material, asking for, and requiring response from the reader. Some of it must deal with ideas as such, with issues, with controversies, with the questions which matter to us and to the community.

In running a literary magazine one has to strike a happy middle-point between the event, the one-shot affair, and the daily publication which deals with superficial and transitory matters. To strike this point, and taking into consideration the practical side of the matter, the new editorial board hopes to publish three issues of Forge; two in the first term, the other, somewhat larger, in the spring term.

Apart from the financial problems connected with this plan, the main difficulty lies in the collection of sufficient material. Forge is asking for creative writing, in prose or verse, and for essays and articles, critical or humorous. Matters connected with literature and the arts, as well as any of the more fundamental aspects of our life, make acceptable subjects for serious articles.

Material will be accepted until the end of term, and Forge would like the writers on the campus to work on something over the summer for submission at the commencement of next term. The first issue should appear in the middle of November, and as much material as possible will be greatly appreciated well in advance of that date. Material should be sent to: Forge, McGill Union, 690 Sherbrooke St. W.

We would like to see Forge the continuing expression of the intellectual life of the McGill community. For this to become reality, members of the community, both staff and students, must be prepared to express themselves. Forge should give thinking students and staff a chance to express themselves a little more deeply and carefully than they can in the letters column of The Daily, though we hope the editorial columns of The Daily will still be the battle-field of intelligent controversy and expression of ideas.

Russian Student Exchange Considered Improbable

Suspension of any action on the Russian-Canadian student exchange was the report of the Department of External Affairs to the SEC at last Thursday night's meeting.

The report summarized the replies received to the McGill Students' Society motion passed last November. The motion mandated the students' executive council to proceed with an exchange independently of NFUS if eleven other Canadian universities participated.

To date, the report stated, only four of the twenty-two universities approached have shown a willingness to participate in such an exchange. These were Dalhousie, Toronto, Western and Saskatchewan.

Ten of the universities approached have answered in the negative. The report pointed out that while it was theoretically possible to carry out the Students' Society's mandate, it was highly unlikely that it would be practical. Yet to be heard from several universities whose participation would be most unlikely.

Among the ten opposing the McGill proposal for reasons ranging from lack of funds to opposition to the principle of the project were New Brunswick, Laval, Queen's, Ottawa University, Carleton, Alberta, and University of British Columbia. Other reasons advanced for turning down the exchange were lack of a two-thirds vote in a campus referendum which supported the exchange by the Carleton College Student Council, and a feeling by the U.B.C. Council that the exchange should be for a longer period.

The report concluded that the only possible course of action would be suspension of the exchange, since it appeared no concrete action on it could be taken.

Club Holds Dance, Election

The annual election meeting of the Cosmopolitan Club took place last night, together with a film showing.

George Novotny was re-elected President of the Club by acclamation; George Lazarus and Allison Cobban became Vice-Presidents; Ben Kubow was elected Treasurer; Fran Marven Publicity Manager; Irene Wisniewski and Enid Melville became the recording and corresponding secretaries. Elaine Newman was elected to the post of Social Director.

The meeting was the last of the year. A final party will be held by the Club on Friday, March 20 at 8 p.m. in the Union Lounge. Music for dancing and refreshments will be provided and all students are invited to attend.

Meds Hold Annual Formal on Friday

The Annual Medical Ball will take place this year on Friday evening, March 20, in the Sir Arthur Currie Gym.

The event will be formal and will commence at 10 p.m., and continue until 3 a.m. Music will be supplied by the Westernaires.

The ball this year will honor Miss Gertrude Mudge, who, after serving on the faculty as Assistant Secretary for 30 years, will retire at the end of this year. Many doctors who remember Miss Mudge from their school year will be present.

Among these old grads will be Dr. C. F. Martin, M.D. 1923. Tickets for the ball are $5 per couple and seat reservations may be made in the Medical Building.

Claxton Cites Defence Policy For Canada

Hon. Brooke Claxton, Minister of National Defence, said on Monday that 85 per cent of the ultimate manpower objective for Canada has been reached. The statement was made in a talk given to an open meeting of the Liberal Club on March 9 in the Union Ballroom.

Mr. Claxton added that he armoured strength had been nearly doubled since he announced the five year armament plan in 1950. There has been a corresponding increase in the number of officers; in 2½ years the increase has been over 8,000 men, he said.

He mentioned three points Canada must take into consideration for defence: the defence of Canada itself from direct attack, the carrying out of commitments made under the United Nations Charter or the North Atlantic Treaty, and lastly, the provision of machinery and administration to build up strength.

Mr. Claxton warned that we must not "become complacent" because the program seems to have been successful. We must regard defence as "the nation's business," and the expense as "payments of the premium to insure peace."

He mentioned that directly or indirectly, part time or full time, 10 per cent of Canada's population is working for defence.

ATTENTION WRITERS
There will be an important meeting next Tuesday, March 17 at 1 p.m. in the Boardroom for all those interested in writing music, lyrics, dialogue and skills for the Red and White Revue production next year.

All those who ordered pictures of "Naughty for Knowledge" from Peter Hall, are requested to pick them up at his studio on Victoria street (near the Union) next week.

English Department Presents:

Hippolytus—Exciting, Strange

by Professor S. Porter

No one can really understand a play unless he can see or imagine it performed. We must visualize the characters in action in order to appreciate the dramatist's skill. Yet few of us have had a chance to see more than one kind of drama on stage—the modern realistic important lesson: in the hands of a good craftsman (Euripides is one of the best) the theatre is a much more flexible medium of communication than the strictly naturalistic convention would suggest. The story is put across with great energy and economy. The subject matter is violent, even sensational. Phaedra's incestuous love so shocked the Athenians that Euripides had to rewrite the play to tone her down. The arguments of the nurse, "What you want is not fine words, but the man," and Hippolytus' quibble about breaking an oath, "My tongue swore but my mind was still unpledged," were often quoted as evidence that Euripides corrupted the young.

Aristophanes imagines Aeschylus as admitting that the story of Phaedra is true but adding that "the poet should conceal the vile and not bring it on the boards, for children have the schoolmaster, and the young men have the poets." "Hippolytus" is perhaps the first of the line of studies of passion which have been too strong for their contemporaries—a line which leads through "Madame Bovary" and "Ghosts" and, most recently "A Streetcar Named Desire."

Euripides' characterization in this play is more modern and "psychological" than anything you will be likely to find in the older Greek dramatists. Phaedra, struggling to "subdue her love with the mind's power," shows the symptoms of neurosis as a result of her repression, and the nurse, urging her to give in to her incestuous impulse, sounds like an analyst advising a patient to get rid of an inhibition: "Upon the yielding spirit she (Love) comes gently, But to the proud and fanatic heart She is a torturer with a brand of shame."

Hippolytus is a puritan, offended not only by vice but by the very nature of love between the sexes. His obsession with purity, Euripides implies, is the conscious manifestation of a hidden morbid interest in passion. Phaedra guesses this; planning her revenge on him, (Continued on Page 4) prose play. The great tragedies we read, the masterpieces of the Greek, Elizabethan and French classic tradition, are strange to us because we haven't seen how they work in practice. We are sometimes put off by the unrealistic conventions, yet these conventions are often more expressive and dramatic than our own.

Tonight, Friday and Saturday, the English Department will present in Moyse Hall Euripides' "Hippolytus," more than two thousand years old and as far from modern stage practice as we possibly get. We believe it is still an exciting play on stage, perhaps more exciting now because of its strangeness than it was when it achieved its first success in 428 B.C.

Those of us who have worked on "Hippolytus" have learned an

Actors Must Scream, Weep in Greek Tragedy

To perform in Greek tragedy the actor must get rid of most of his inhibitions. He must scream, weep, kneel and clutch another actor's knees in entreaty, lift his clenched fists, and get used to wearing clothes unlike anything he has ever seen. The first assault on the dignity of the "Hippolytus" cast came when all men trying out for roles were required to audition in bathing-trunks, like a musical comedy chorus line showing its legs. Afterwards the costume designer, Mrs. Douglas, and the director, Mr. Porter, conferred for weeks, about the proper skirt length for youthful males—short enough to look Greek, long enough to let the actor move around with some degree of self-confidence. The older men in the play faced the opposite hurdle; they had to get used to skirts which swept the ground.

The women have an easier time as far as costume is concerned, but six of them have a special problem of their own. Greek drama uses a chorus, a collective person, ally—a group of people who act and think as one. Half a dozen McGill girls have been practicing to get rid of all their individual mannerisms, to think, move, and speak as a solid unit. Except for bridesmaids and pall-bearers, few of us learn to take part in formalized ritual, but the "Hippolytus" chorus has been studying this art.

Bob MacLellan Captures Forbes Trophy

College Puck and Hoop Dream Teams Out

The All-star Intercollegiate hockey teams were graced by the presence of five McGill Redmen, a far cry from the blank drawn by Joe Anderson's court crew on the hoopla dream team.

Goalie Bob MacLellan led the Redmen to their fine showing as he proved a unanimous choice for the first team spot. Whitey Schultz racked up two firsts and a second for a commanding lead over U of M's Bernie Quessel at left wing, while the Redmen's sophomore mentor, Rocky Robillard, beat out Laval's Leo Bourgeault for the coaching spot. It was Robillard's second try at master-minding the Redmen, and though they are slated to end the current campaign in third place, they finished up as the best team in the circuit.

The other two Red and White color-bearers, Jim McGowan and Ron Robertson, teamed up to take the blue line positions on the second team, edged out by Laval's Roddy Roy, a unanimous choice, and Vernier of the U. of M. for first team places.

The basketball selections proved to be a group of another color, as McGill's fair name failed to show on either list. Western Mustangs, champions for the eighth straight season, made the best showing, as expected, by holding down three of the six first squad places.

Doug McNichol, giant center, was the only unanimous choice as he repeated at the center spot. For company on the forward line, he drew Queen's Don Griffin and Toronto's captain, Lou Lukenda. Ray Truant of the Mustangs and Lou Veres, Assumption holshot, were placed at guard, while Johnny Metras, who also led the football champion Mustangs, was picked as All-star mentor.

Top Athletic Honor To Versatile Star

By BOB BORNSTEIN

Bob MacLellan, possessor of a remarkable athletic record in his four years at McGill, is the 1953 winner of the Major Stuart Forbes Trophy, awarded annually to an athlete adjudged to have brought the most credit to the University during the year.

Voting for the trophy is done by members of the intercollegiate athletics council. Don Menard was runner-up to MacLellan in the re-as being a noted football star, and Shaw has made a name for himself in both hockey and football. MacLellan, one of McGill's most popular and versatile athletes, is a worthy successor to such outstanding sports figures as Pete Robinson, Rocky Robillard, Dave Caldwell and Adin Merrow. Caldwell won the Forbes Trophy last year, Robillard in '51, Robillard in '50 and Merrow, the sensational swimmer, in '49.

BOB MACLELLAN

MacLellan has been in the football and hockey limelight ever since his advent to McGill in 1949. Since that time, he has starred on both the senior football and hockey teams for four straight seasons, establishing himself as a tower of strength at centre in the pigskin wars and a goalkeeper of considerable stature in the puck frays.

Big Bob came to McGill with his senior matriculation, and so, went into second year on his arrival from Toronto, where he makes his home. Last spring he received his B.A. and right now MacLellan is taking third year Science. He has set his sights on Medicine and from all indications he should make it. Certainly he has proved beyond a doubt his ability as a student and an athlete.

More important than both is the fact that Robert S. MacLellan is a well-respected and much-admired individual. He has won friends in all his dealings around the University and everyone who has had any sort of contact with the likeable big guy has nothing but praise for him.

The honor to be bestowed on Bob at the Awards Banquet tonight is a fitting tribute to him. He rates every accolade to be thrown in his direction.

Redgell Wins MWSAA Outstanding Award

By IRMA MOSCOVITZ

At the MWSAA banquet, to be held next Wednesday night, March 18, at 8.30 in the RVC gym, official recognition will be given to Alfreda Redgell, winner of the MWSAA highest award this year.

This trophy, which consists of a rose bowl on a wooden base, is given for "proficiency in athletics and leadership." To be eligible for this trophy, co-eds must be in their graduating year. They must have received 4 senior M's for participation on 4 intercollegiate squads, and must have held a position on the MWSAA Council, either as a club manager, or a member of the executive. In addition, active membership in another club other than the ones for which she received her senior M's is necessary.

Alfreda, who is in her last year of the School of Physical and Occupational Therapy, has been active in athletic circles at McGill since her freshman year. She has been on both the intercollegiate badminton and swimming teams, and has also taken an active part in intra-mural sports.

This year she was the manager of the badminton club, and as such was a member of the MWSAA Council. In addition to these activities, Alfreda has taken an active part in the Water Show for the last two years.

Cagers Clipped Twice More In Season Wind-up Games

By MARTY GOODMAN

Coach Joe Anderson's senior hoopla squad finished off their current basketball season last weekend with a trip to Ontario, losing games to McMaster and Toronto. Both home teams had previously beaten the Redmen.

The Marauders started things off Friday night when they walloped the fired McGill squad by a 84-65 count. Hugh Raphael, who played standout ball in the last games of the schedule, turned in another topnotch performance, while Mel Mikalachki led the scorers with 17. McMaster was hitting on all eight, and it was one of those nights where nothing could go wrong. They hit from every angle in running up the score.

Saturday saw a vastly improved McGill team fight right down to the last whistle before losing a heart-breaker to the Blues, 63-59. It marked Varsity's eighth straight win since losing their first two starts of the season.

In the last minute of play, the scoreboard read 61-58 in favor of Varsity, when Sheldon Merling was fouled. He sunk the first of his two free shots, stepped to the line once more, and missed. The Redmen tried hard to grab the rebound and sink it for the tying markers, but George Stulac stole the ball, raced down the floor, and sank the lay-up to give the Blues their four point winning margin.

The game was close all the way, with both teams employing a zone defence. Edwards and Raphael did well on sets, while Merling and Mel Mikalachki took care of the close-in work. It was a clean contest, and no one was fouled out, as a total of 23 personal fouls were called, eight on Toronto and 15 on McGill.

The final standings show Western on top with a nine and one record, and the Mustangs will go against the University of Alberta Golden Bears in the collegiate final. The Bears won the right to represent the West when they beat University of Manitoba in a two game series last weekend. The same two teams, Alberta and Western, hooked up in the final last year.

At a special meeting last night Gordie Edwards was chosen as captain for next year.

The McGill Intermediate Indians took their third loss of the season when they were dropped 61-50 by Sir George Williams. The Georgian squad ran up an early lead and hung on all the way as the Indians tried hard to close on a winning note.

Mel Mikalachki took the Individual scoring title as he ended with a total of 218 points, nine better than Sheldon Merling, captain and centre, who closed with a great

Redmen 3rd In Puck Race

By LES DALY

If you want to shock a lot of people these days without doing anything obscene just let them take a look at the standings in the college hockey loop. Up in the third place spot and not by a fluke or a typesetter's error are the McGill Redmen.

Rocky Robillard's men who started off the season about as hot as an ice cube, climaxed a four-game unbeaten streak by blasting the Toronto Blues to bits by a 6-1 count last Friday.

The Red and White crew couldn't make a mistake all night as they threw everything but their skates at goalie Jack Ross. Snazzy centreman Pete Constable and wingman Gordie Currie went on a spree and banged in two goals apiece to pace the attack. Whitey Schultz handed in a goal and three assists to help the cause and Dick Irvin got another to complete the massacre.

The Redmen have two more games left on the slate. They tackle Toronto up in the Queen City Friday night and come back here for a clash with the Carabins Saturday night. The final fracas takes place at the Verdun Auditorium and has all the ingredients for a real old fashioned knock-down-drag-em-out battle. The Flying Frenchmen are hot on the heels of the Laval crew and need the win to grab first place.

The Carabins have the advantage of playing the Saturday session on home ice. When they play they are assured of at least a couple of thousand fans to cheer them on. McGill could use a cheering section like that to give them a hand over the rough spots. To put it mildly, it's a pretty discouraging feeling to have two or three thousand voices blasting the daylights out of you without having anything to answer back. These Carabin fans are really a ferocious lot and a little support from the local campus wouldn't harm the Redmen a bit. They deserve all the support they can get.

Elsewhere on the hockey front the Intermediate Indians closed out their season last week. In a game that decided the championship the Indians bit the dust to the tune of 6-3 before a strong Loyola attack. Until that game the Indians had been undefeated; coach Ross Hutchins deserves a pat on the back for his work this season.

A Sports Profile BOB MacLELLAN

By Mitch Klein

In these days of bickering over decisions of any importance, unanimous selections are few and far between. McGill has come up with one of these rarities in the awarding of the Major Stuart Forbes Trophy to Bob MacLellan, a choice which meets with the approval of all those close to the sports scene in these parts.

To the members of the sports-writing fraternity, the selection of MacLellan was a mere formality, he is held in such high esteem. Ask his coach, Rocky Robillard about Bob, and this is the answer you'll get: "As Big Bob goes, so goes the team." Ask his team-mates and the replies are all full of praise—a good athlete and a gentleman.

But what is the story behind this giant behemoth, the fellow who plugs up the gap in the centre of the line, or the guy who did the "splits" on that last one that was ticketed for the lower right hand corner?

Big Bob, contrary to popular opinion, was born here in Montreal 23 years ago. At an early age, his parents moved to Toronto, and it was in the blue law city that Bob grew up. He attended Cathedral Choir School, and upon the completion of his elementary education, enrolled in St. Mike's.

Big Bob gained a fine reputation while toiling for the Irishmen, playing two years of senior football and another two years of junior "B" hockey. In his senior matric year, he goalied half a season for the Junior "A" squad, which is quite a feat as St. Mike's is considered the hotbed of junior hockey in Ontario.

Upon graduating from high school, Bob was faced with a problem. Although the proud possessor of his senior matric, Ontario colleges still considered him a freshman as far as athletics were concerned. Big Bob took the obvious route, and entered at McGill where his athletic standing rendered him eligible for senior competition.

The rest of the story is history as far as McGill fans are concerned.

BIG BOB IN ACTION

Bob's pigskin career at McGill has been one of steady improvement. In his initial two campaigns with the Redmen, he alternated at the centre slot with Ron Sharpe. Despite this handicap, he was named to the Canadian Press all-star team at the close of the 1950 season.

The past two years, MacLellan has been called upon to do yeoman service, playing practically 60 minutes a game. His efforts have not been overlooked, however, as he has been named to the coach's dream team for the last two campaigns, a unanimous choice this year.

His activities on the ice lanes have been slightly less spectacular, but this season Big Bob really came into his own. He possesses a sterling 3.8 goals against average, tops in the league, as well as being the all-star goalie.

MacLellan has recently played more than a small part in McGill's resurgence in the hockey wars. Since Bob is currently in his 3rd year science, and hopes to enroll in medicine next year. Should his ambition be fulfilled, the Redmen's hockey and football opponents better watch out. You're going to have trouble scoring against McGill.

ASUS PRESENTS

CAMPUS CIRCLES

POSTSCRIPT

Looking at it from an extra-curricular viewpoint, the cessation of publication of The Daily and the presentation of Students' Society awards (tonight) marks the end of another college year. The temptation to look back over a year in review, fortunately, is far from overwhelming. Looking back slightly less than a week, however, brings us to the annual Arts and Science Undergraduates Society "Awards Banquet" and the presentation of 34 ASUS awards:

Eight "Executive," three "Special," six "A," ten "B," and seven "C" awards were presented. "Executive," "Special" and "A" awards are beer mugs, "B" awards are lapel pins, and "C" awards certificates. "Executive" awards go to members of the retiring ASUS executive; "Special" awards to students who are not members of the ASUS who have assisted in the organization's activity.

Awards presented:
"EXECUTIVE AWARDS: Hugh Durnford, Gerald Burke, David Artis, Christine Poznanska, Mary Swarc, John Lough, Harvey Cresciani, Joyce Iversen.
"SPECIAL AWARDS: Don Allen, John Jonas, George Novotny.
